10 TOP TAKEAWAYS FROM THE SYNOD ON SYNODALITY

By Peter Jesserer Smith OSV News

The Synod on Synodality’s first session at the Vatican has concluded, with its results wrapped up in a 41-page “half-time report” for the entire Church to digest, reflect on, and which to give feedback ahead of the synod’s final session in Rome next October.

The report, a synthesis of the Oct. 4-29 meeting, is fundamentally an instrument for discernment, and it is designed to elicit further reflection and response from the whole Church. The synod’s next session in Rome will have the task of making decisions about what concrete proposals to present before the pope. Ultimately, the pope will decide what to implement coming out of the Synod on Synodality.

The following are 10 takeaways about the synod’s synthesis report, with why it matters for Catholics in parishes and what happens next.

1. Synodality is about the Church’s evangelizing mission, and baptism is why synodal governance matters.

The synod relates that “synodality is ordered to mission,” recognizing that the Church’s members—with diverse backgrounds, languages and cultures—share the “common grace of baptism.” The synod’s themes of “communion, participation, mission” are the hallmarks for how the entire people of God in a synodal Church—the laity, consecrated religious, deacons, and priests with the bishops united with the pope—relate to each other and live together the call to holiness, proclaiming Jesus Christ’s good news to the world.

The synod explicitly says its work is rooted in the Church’s dynamic and living tradition in the context of the Second Vatican Council’s teaching. But the synod also recognizes much remains to be done to clarify what “synodality” means, and to develop it into real processes and structures.

Part of that is figuring out how decisions are made in the Church in a way that is faithful to its nature—including discerning how episcopal collegiality is exercised in a synodal Church—because the Church’s members have “differentiated co-responsibility for the common mission of evangelization.”

The synod’s “conversations in the Spirit”—an experience of listening and sharing in the light of faith, and seeking God’s will in an authentically evangelical atmosphere—is recognized as a helpful tool in this regard.

SYNOD ON SYNODALITY—The Most Rev. Edward M. Rice, Bishop of the Diocese of Springfield-Cape Girardeau, processes into Mass in St. Mary Cathedral, Cape Girardeau. The Church’s members have “differentiated co-responsibility for the common mission of evangelization.” The synod stresses that all the Church’s members are called to be “all disciples, all missionaries” who have the “responsibility of demonstrating and transmitting the love and tenderness of God to a wounded humanity.” In other words, living discipleship is at the heart of being Catholic.

2. The synod calls for formation in “authentic discipleship,” united by the Eucharist and nourished by the Word.

The synod stresses that all the Church’s members are called to “all disciples, all missionaries” who have the “responsibility of demonstrating and transmitting the love and tenderness of God to a wounded humanity.” In other words, living discipleship is at the heart of being Catholic.

The synod suggested deepening the notion that a “mature exercise of the ‘sensus fidei’ requires not only reception of CONTINUED ON PAGE 9...
I offer a special word of thanks to the schools in the Cape Girardeau area that collected donations for the All Schools Mass held Oct. 10 in Notre Dame Regional High School. Altogether, $1,458 was collected to support LifeHouse in Cape Girardeau.

At a recent pro-life gathering in Cape Girardeau, the speaker hailed the fact that Missouri is a “pro-life state.” This is the third time I’ve heard that comment made and I’m getting a little nervous. We cannot be lulled into a false sense of security. The forces promoting abortion are focusing their efforts on petitions to amend Missouri’s constitution. While each of the 11 initiative petitions varies in its scope, any amendment to the state constitution involving a pro-abortion initiative would be devastating to life.

The 11 initiative petitions would amend Missouri’s constitution to provide in part: that the government shall not deny or infringe upon a person’s fundamental right to reproductive freedom, which entails the right to make and carry out decisions about all matters relating to reproductive healthcare, including but not limited to prenatal care, childbirth, postpartum care, birth control, abortion care, miscarriage care, and respectful birthing conditions.

In addition, each petition would provide in this or very similar language that: no person shall be penalized, prosecuted, or otherwise subjected to adverse action based on their actual, potential, perceived, or alleged pregnancy outcomes, including but not limited to miscarriage, stillbirth, or abortion. Nor shall any person assisting a person in exercising their right to reproductive freedom would that person’s consent be penalized, prosecuted, or otherwise subjected to adverse action for doing so.

The 11 petitions vary in other ways. Some would allow Missouri to require parental consent before an abortion while others would not. Some would allow restrictions on government funding of abortion, while others would not. Some purport to restrict abortion after 24 weeks of pregnancy or after viability, while others do not, but only as long as the government does not deny or restrict abortion “to protect the life or physical or mental health of the pregnant person.”

How should we respond? Again, we cannot think that the issue is said and done. I think we can learn from the mistakes made in Kansas. We need to rally our troops. I envision our parishes being centers for voter registration to get out the Catholic vote. We need to study the language of these initiative petitions, so we clearly know what they are proposing and for what we are voting. It’s not just abortion at this point. It’s also about parental consent and government funding.

The difficulty is that we do not know which of these 11 initiative petitions to amend Missouri’s constitution will actually move forward. But the reality is this: we cannot rest on what has been done in the past. This truly is a battle for life. Depending on the proposal, Missouri could become a state with extreme abortion. Depending on which proposal, we know that even the most basic medical and safety protections will be removed. Depending on the proposal, late-term abortions will be allowed for virtually any reason. Depending on the proposal, parental consent will be removed. Depending on the amendment, taxpayers would be forced to pay for elective abortions, including late-term abortions. The November 2024 election cycle is going to be ugly, a battle, but it is a battle worth fighting because it is the battle for life.

MOUNTAINTOP HOMES FOR VETERANS—Bishop Edward M. Rice and other dignitaries turned the dirt on the 1.4 acres which will soon be Mountaintop Homes, in Mount Vernon, for mixed-income families, and homeless/at-risk veterans. Undertaken by O’Reilly Development Company, LLC, the project is in partnership with Catholic Charities of Southern Missouri, which will provide an on-site Housing Resource Coordinator, who will provide support services, and case management. As is his custom, Bishop Rice planted a Miraculous Medal in the ground and, along with the staff and board members of Catholic Charities, the Hail Mary was prayed, asking Our Lady’s blessings on the project and upon all those who will be served at Mountaintop Homes. Additional information about this important ministry will be in the next edition of The Mirror. (Photo by Deacon Rob Huff/The Mirror)

BISHOP’S COLLECTION FOR CATHOLIC CHARITIES
You’ll notice in the center of this edition of the diocesan newspaper, details surrounding the 2023 Bishop’s Collection for Catholic Charities of Southern Missouri, the annual collection for the important charitable arm of my ministry.

Each year, the weekend before Thanksgiving, we have the opportunity to come together as a Catholic community and put our faith into action through the annual Bishop’s Collection for Catholic Charities, November 18-19, this year. This date also coincides with the Seventh World Day of the Poor, established by Pope Francis. The 2023 theme: “Do not turn your face away from anyone who is poor” (Tob 4:7). As the Diocese’s charitable apostolate, Catholic Charities of Southern Missouri makes certain that our gaze is ever-steady on the poor and most vulnerable among us. Offering more than just a one-time hand out, Catholic Charities works one-on-one with individuals and families to provide the help and hope they need to achieve long-term success. Each year, thousands of people are assisted through the many programs and services of Catholic Charities, due in large part to the goodness and generosity of donors such as yourself. I am proud of the work Catholic Charities provides in the name of all Catholics across southern Missouri.

Every family deserves a home, every veteran deserves restored pride, and every homeless mother deserves a new beginning. As we look to this Thanksgiving, let us recall our many gifts and blessings. Then, sacrificially and prayerfully, make a gift to Catholic Charities. Together, through your generosity, we will continue to Reach Out, Provide Hope, and Change Lives. O Sacrament Most Holy, O Sacrament Divine, all praise and all thanksgiving be every moment Thine. ©TM

Fr. Audrey Troya Toloza

Happy Anniversary, Fr. Toloza!

frezo unas palabras especiales de agradecimiento a las escuelas de la zona de Cape Girardeau que recaudaron donaciones para la Misa de Todas las Escuelas celebrada el 10 de octubre en la Escuela Secundaria Regional Notre Dame. En total, se recaudaron $1458 dólares para apoyar a LifeHouse en Cape Girardeau.

En una reciente reunión provista en Cape Girardeau, el orador celebró el hecho de que Missouri sea un “estado provisto”. Es la tercera vez que oigo ese comentario y me pone un poco nervioso. No podemos dejarnos llevar por una falsa sensación de seguridad. Las fuerzas que promueven el aborto están centrando sus esfuerzos en peticiones para enmendar la Constitución de Missouri. Aunque cada una de las 11 peticiones de iniciativa varía en su alcance, cualquier enmienda a la constitución estatal que implique una iniciativa proaborto sería devastadora para la vida.

Las 11 peticiones de iniciativa enmendarían la Constitución de Missouri para establecer en parte: que el gobierno no negará ni infringirá el derecho fundamental de una persona a la libertad reproductiva, que implica el derecho a tomar y llevar a cabo decisiones sobre todos los asuntos relacionados con la atención médica y de seguridad más básicas. Algunas permitirían restricciones a la financiación del aborto por parte del gobierno, mientras que otras no. Algunas permitirían restringir el aborto después de las 24 semanas de embarazo o después de la viabilidad, mientras que otras no, pero sólo mientras el gobierno no niegue o restrinja el aborto “para proteger la vida o la salud física o mental de la persona embarazada”.

¿Cómo debemos responder? Una vez más, no podemos pensar que el asunto está resuelto. Creo que podemos aprender de los errores cometidos en Kansas. Tenemos que reunir a nuestras tropas. Imagino nuestras parroquias como centros de inscripción de votantes para conseguir el voto católico. Necesitamos estudiar el lenguaje de estas peticiones de iniciativa, para que sepamos claramente lo que proponen y para qué votamos. A estas alturas no se trata sólo del aborto. También tiene que ver con el consentimiento paterno y la financiación pública.

La dificultad radica en que no sabemos cuál de estas 11 peticiones de iniciativa para modificar la Constitución de Missouri saldrá realmente adelante. Pero la realidad es esta: no podemos quedarnos tranquilos con lo que se ha hecho en el pasado. Esta es realmente una batalla por la vida. Según la propuesta, Missouri podría convertirse en un estado con aborto extremo. Según cuál sea la propuesta, sabemos que se eliminarán incluso las protecciones médicas y de seguridad más básicas. Según la propuesta, se permitirán los abortos tardíos por prácticamente cualquier motivo. Según la propuesta, se eliminará el consentimiento paterno. Según la enmienda, los contribuyentes se verían obligados a pagar los abortos electivos, incluidos los abortos tardíos. El ciclo electoral de noviembre de 2024 va a ser horrible, una batalla, pero es una batalla que merece la pena librarse porque es la batalla por la vida.

Another Walk Through: ‘Walking Together’

by Bishop Emeritus
John J. Leibrecht

Before his retirement in 2008 as the Fifth Bishop of the Diocese of Springfield-Cape Girardeau, Bishop John Leibrecht wrote a standing column in The Mirror entitled, “Walking Together.” At the end of each article, Bp. Leibrecht would normally share a funny story referencing his travels to the schools, or time with friends, family, or other bishops. The Mirror has decided to share a few of these in an ongoing series entitled, “Another walk through: ‘Walking Together.’” We hope you enjoy them.

February 23, 1990 A priest told me about an elderly woman who, after Mass, told him, “Father, your homily was the most beautiful one that I’ve ever heard!” Pleasantly surprised by her compliment, the priest thanked the lady for the kind words and continued the conversation by asking, “How are you feeling?” Cupping her hand behind her ear, the lady asked, “What did you say, Father?”

March 9, 1990 “Another good thing about being a priest,” the old Irish priest told pupils in their religion classes, “is that on birthdays and at Christmas nobody gives you ties.”

March 16, 1990 A rookie pitcher was being hit hard and in deep trouble when the manager came to the mound. “Son,” he said, “I think you’ve had enough.” The young fellow pleaded, “But I struck out this next guy the last time he was up.” “I know,” the manager said, “but that was earlier this inning.”

THE BISHOP’S COLLECTION
for Catholic Charities of Southern Missouri
NOVEMBER 18-19, 2023

The Bishop’s Collection is the annual appeal for Catholic Charities of Southern Missouri. Each year, this collection takes place in commemoration of World Day of the Poor.

In his message for World Day of the Poor 2023, Pope Francis urges, “It is easy to delegate charity to others, yet the calling of every Christian is to become personally involved.”

There has never been a better time to become personally involved in Catholic Charities of Southern Missouri. Your donation enables us to provide compassionate social services to the most vulnerable populations across the southernmost third of our state. Your donation changes lives.

As we grow closer to the weekend of Bishop’s Collection, we ask that you prayerfully consider a donation to support ALL of the programs and ALL of the clients served by CCSOMO. One-time and monthly donation options are available. Would you consider a gift of $25 a month or more for Catholic Charities of Southern Missouri? A monthly gift from your family to Catholic Charities will make a difference for all of our programs.

YOUR IMPACT AS A MONTHLY DONOR
A monthly gift supports ALL of our programs including the examples below.

A WORD FROM BISHOP RICE

The weekend before Thanksgiving, we have an opportunity to come together as a Catholic community to put our faith into action through the annual Bishop’s Collection for Catholic Charities, November 18-19.

As Bishop, I am proud of the work Catholic Charities provides in the name of all Catholics across southern Missouri. As we look to Thanksgiving and the time we will spend in our homes filled with good food, family and friends, let us recall our many gifts and blessings. Then, sacrificially and prayerfully make your gift to Catholic Charities.
The Church is koinonia — an organic communion, a fellowship, a union of all: all races, all tax brackets, a communion in whom is neither Jew nor Greek, slave nor free person, male nor female as Paul beautifully described it (Gal 3:28). This means it’s a communion transcending every human distinction.

But the Church is also a communion with God the Trinity — Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. A communion, so to speak, both horizontal and vertical — it’s communion not only with our fellow human beings but also communion with God himself. That is, the communion that is the Church is sacramental. It’s communion both divine and human, immaterial and material. The Church is invisible, as well as visible; it has a visible structure. But its invisible structure is what’s triumphantly and eternally, revealed in what’s materially made holy.

To stand before this communion is to stand mystically before Christ. To encounter the Church, the sacrament of Christ, is, therefore, a personal encounter. And if it’s a personal encounter, this Body of Christ communicates personally; that is, Christ speaks to us, in a sense, in his body, the Church. This is how we understand Scripture, tradition and revelation. Scripture is how the Body of Christ, the Church, speaks. When we encounter Scripture, that encounter is always mystical; it’s a coming into contact with the “mystery of Christ.” And it’s when we encounter Christ scripturally within the Body of Christ — the human and divine fellowship which is also called the Church — that we experience the event of revelation. Thus, as Catholics, our experience of the Bible is fundamentally a relational experience.

Because of this, what we’re talking about really is how to have a personal relationship with Jesus Christ. We Catholics believe that to have a personal relationship with Christ, a person must also have a relationship with him within the communion of the Church, the Body of Christ. This is where one finds the real Jesus with whom one can have a personal relationship, which brings salvation. For we Catholics, knowing Jesus personally and scripturally, and also living within the communion of the Church cannot be separated; to separate these truths is to render each false. This is a fundamental truth of Catholicism.

While Jesus, the Church, the Body of Christ, speaks to us in Scripture and tradition, so too we are communicated with: that is, in sacrament, the Sacraments — the sacred mysteries.

To talk about the sacraments, begin by thinking of the person you love — your wife or husband, a friend. How do you express your love? Do you simply use words? Do you simply say, “I love you”? Do you never hug, kiss, hold hands? When you express your love for another person, do you never express that love sensually? Of course, you do: you hug, kiss, hold hands and so on. Because that’s what love is — it’s more than words. And that, very plainly, is why we have not only Scripture, the words of God’s love, but also the sacraments, the sensual expression of God’s love. It’s really that simple.

But how are the sacraments sensual expressions of God’s love? A little basic theology is helpful here. Now the classic definition of a sacrament is simply this: A sacrament is an outward visible sign of an inward invisible grace. The sacrament of the Eucharist, for example, is an outward sign (bread and wine) or an inward invisible grace (the body and blood of Christ). And wine signify Christ’s body and blood, the bread and wine actually participate in Christ’s body and blood — the bread and wine truly become the Body and Blood of Christ. In the sacraments, by the power of the Holy Spirit, Christ acts by means of visible signs to “make present efficaciously the grace that they signify” (Catechism of the Catholic Church, No. 1084). A stop sign, for instance, is simply a sign that relates a message: Stop! But it’s not a sign that participates in any sort of metaphorical form or being; there is no eternal being of stop-ness. A sacrament is a sign and more: it’s a sign that participates in what it signifies. And this definition can be applied to all the sacraments.

Before we look at the first sacrament, baptism, consider this story: I have a friend who’s a believer in Jesus but who’s never been baptized. Though he’s a good and faithful person, he didn’t grow up in a family or community that placed much importance on baptism. What mattered more, he thought, was your heart, your faith; as long as you loved Jesus and believed in him, it didn’t matter whether you went through some material ritual. The ritual is insignificant, he believed.

Now this is a perfectly good definition of a sacrament. But I find another definition helpful too: A sacrament is a sign, which participates in what it signifies. That is, again looking at the Eucharist, not only does the bread and wine signify Christ’s body and blood, the bread and wine actually participate in Christ’s body and blood — the bread and wine truly become the Body and Blood of Christ. This is not an uncommon view. Many of our Protestant sisters and brothers think this. And it does certainly have logic and plausibility. It rightly emphasizes the priority of faith over works and over ritual. Yet, on the other hand, such a view is simply not biblical. It’s actually contrary to Scripture. How so? Well, one need only read Peter’s words in Acts of the Apostles where he said, “Repent and be baptized, every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ” (Acts 2:38). This passage comes from Pentecost, where Peter gives this instruction at the end of his first sermon — the very first apostolic sermon in Christian history. Peter had just preached the Gospel of Jesus, moving the crowd to the threshold of faith. And in response, the people ask, “What are we to do?” And this was Peter’s answer: Repent and be baptized!

This, very simply, is why my friend’s view is unbiblical. This is why saying the ritual of baptism isn’t important is contrary to Scripture. Yes, my friend’s view bears a logic and plausibility; he does have a moral point. But he can’t say it’s a biblical point. From day one, as we’ll see, baptism has been put forward as a necessity for Christian believers. Since the very beginning, baptism was considered important, essential. That’s simply the testimony of Scripture, and it’s something we Catholics have always believed.

The synod recognizes bishops and mission together.

4. Synodality is about discerning together how to go on mission at each level of the Church.
The synod also emphasizes that synodality in the Church calls Catholics to discern intentionally as a community how Jesus is calling them to live out their mission. It’s not about self-referential meetings, but rather a style of carrying out “evangelical proclamation, service to those experiencing poverty, care for our common home, and theological research.”

The document emphasizes the need for formation, and also making spaces to receive the Church’s teaching, and discern how to act on it. The Church’s social doctrine needs to be understood by the faithful so they can build up the kingdom of God.

Syndal is about gathering the disciple community together to discern what is their mission and how Jesus is sending them on mission. Any effective structural change to make the Church’s members “co-responsible” presupposes “profound spiritual conversion,” both personal and communal, in order to carry out Jesus’ mission.

At the same time, the synod calls for further consideration on how the Church’s theology and modern developments in science can dialogue, and effective ways to do that for the Church’s discernment, particularly on complicated or controversial questions.
Above all, the synod says, “Jesus’ actions, assimilated in prayer and conversion of heart, show us the way forward.”

4. A synodal Church must reflect on what formation its priests, deacons, and laity need to carry out their mission together.
The synod recognizes bishops and priests face disproportionate burdens of responsibility for the Church’s mission. It also identifies clericalism as opposed to Jesus’ model of ministerial service, leading to “authoritarian attitudes,” and vocations stifled by privilege and power that refuse accountability.

The synod suggests extensive discussion and consideration of revising priestly formation to address this. Instead of forming priests in an “artificial environment separate from the ordinary lives of the faith,” they should develop through “close contact with the People of God and through concrete service learning experiences.”

The synod recognizes there is universal agreement that priestly celibacy is “richly prophetic and a profound witness to Christ.” But it also suggested further consideration of whether it is appropriate for the Latin Church alone to continue to insist on it—the Eastern Churches (Catholic and Orthodox) have a tradition of celibate and married clergy—when there are ecclesial and cultural contexts that make it more difficult for the Church’s mission.

The synod is calling for a deepening reflection on the vocation of the deacon, “above all in the exercise of charity.”

THE ROLE OF WOMEN
The synod indicated the importance of expanding women’s access to theological formation, their inclusion in decision-making and responsibility in pastoral care and ministry, and even the exploration of new ministries where women could decisively contribute. It noted the debate over women and the diaconal ministry, and expressed openness to continue researching and examining what has been done so far. It also touched on lay ministry and called for more creativity in how these roles are thought of and lived at the service of mission: for example, developing the ministry of lector beyond its liturgical role, such as preaching in appropriate contexts. It also envisioned possibly a lay ministry taken up by married couples to support married and family life.

5. Disciples listen to people and accompany them like Christ in whatever their personal, familial, or social situations.
The synod says “listening is the word that best expresses our experience. This is listening given and received.” Listening really is where the Church discerns the mission Jesus is calling his disciples and their particular communities.

It also emphasized the Church needs to give its closeness, listening, and accompaniment to those who feel alone in remaining faithful to the Church’s teaching on marriage and sexual ethics, as well as to those on the margins because of “their marriage status, identity, or sexuality.”

The synod suggests further consideration of the point that listening “does not mean compromising proclamation of the Gospel or endorsing any opinion or position proposed”—but rather being like Jesus, who listens and loves unconditionally to share his good news.

It also emphasized the Church needs to extend its closeness to the lonely and abandoned, the elderly, and sick.

EUCARISTIC HOSPITALITY
The synod document called for further discernment about “Eucharistic hospitality”—the situation of people of different churches receiving Communion—and “inter-church marriages.”

6. The Catholic Church needs strong Eastern Churches collaborating with the Latin Church.
The synod indicates it is vital for Catholics to realize that the Catholic Church is a communion of coequal sister churches—Latin Church (the biggest and headed by the pope) and 23 different Eastern Catholic Churches, all enjoying communion through their unity with the pope. The synod calls for all Catholic communities and clergy to learn about each other and actively work together modeling “unity in diversity.”

It stresses that the Latin Church’s members (for the most part known as Roman Catholics) need to help Eastern Catholics in situations where they do not have access to their own churches to live out their traditions. The synod said “Latinization” (making Eastern churches conform to the traditions and practices of Latin churches) is “outdated.”

The synod indicated that Eastern Churches must work out their relationship to role of the pope, whose role is rooted in the Latin Church, specifically in whether his assent is needed in the selection of bishops, and the fact that Catholics of these Eastern Churches are no longer confined to traditional patriarchal territory but are now all over the world.

It proposes a permanent council of patriarchs and major archbishops to the Holy Father, and that Eastern Catholics should be adequately represented throughout the Roman Curia.

7. The synod suggests a new path for ecumenism, particularly thanks to the martyrs.
There has been a lot of discouragement about dialogue between Catholic and other Christian confessions achieving its goal of actual unity—but the synod appears to have made significant suggestions for moving ahead.

Among the proposals was that an “ecumenical martyrology” be developed, which would allow the church to commemorate Christian martyrs who share a common baptism but not the same confessional boundaries. The point has been emphasized most recently by the early 21st-century martyrs, such as in the Middle East, where Islamist militants killed Orthodox and Catholics for being Christians—among them the 21 Coptic Orthodox martyrs of Libya.

The synod emphasized that local churches can engage ecumenically with other churches in carrying out the work of the Gospel, and the importance of continuing to involve Christians of other churches and traditions in synodal processes “at all levels.”

Among the proposals is to find a common date for the celebration of Easter with an eye to the year 2025, the 1,700th anniversary of the Council of Nicaea.

EVANGELIZE THE DIGITAL REALM
8. The synod emphasizes the Church needs to evangelize digital spaces intentionally as a dimension of its mission. The synod views the digital realm not as a separate field but a “crucial dimension of the Church’s witness in contemporary culture.” This means understanding digital culture in order to evangelize it and engaging the church’s younger generation — clergy, religious and lay — in carrying out the mission here.

The synod proposes discernment on how the Church can be involved in helping make the online world “safe” for families—noting the dangers of intimidation, disinformation, sex exploitation, and addiction—and how the Church can make the digital realm “spiritually life-giving.”

This challenges parishes and dioceses about how to engage here, especially forming and accompanying “digital missionaries” and networking them together. It also suggests creating collaborative opportunities with influencers, particularly in areas of “human dignity, justice, and care for our common home.”

9. Sex abuse is undermining the Church’s missionary life, and the synod recognizes that a truly synodal Church needs to get this right.

The synod stated, “Sexual abuse and the abuse of power and authority continue to cry out for justice, healing, and reconciliation.” It acknowledges this synodal process has seen the Holy Spirit pour out fruits of “hope, healing, reconciliation, and restoration of trust.” Furthermore, listening to and accompanying those who have suffered abuse in the Church have helped people feel no longer invisible. At the same time, the synod makes clear “the long journey towards reconciliation and justice” remains and requires “addressing the structural conditions that abetted such abuse” and “concrete gestures of penitence.”

A synodal Church requires a “culture of transparency,” respect for existing procedures to safeguard minors and people when they are vulnerable, and “further structures dedicated to the prevention of abuse.” It noted bishops are in a difficult situation of reconciling their “role of father with that of judge,” and suggested exploring the possibility of giving the judicial task to another body specified in canon law.

10. The bishops must now figure out how to take these ideas to the pews for further discernment and bring that back to the synod.

The synod synthesis’ 41-pages are broken up into three sections with vital topics that truly interest and affect the entire People of God.

WHAT’S NEXT

At this point, the synod leaves it to worldwide episcopal conferences to discern the next steps to take. During the synod’s first session, Archbishop Timothy P. Broglio of the US Archdiocese for the Military Services, who is president of the US Conference of Catholic Bishops (USCCB), acknowledged that the bishops have to foster greater participation, including encouraging pastors to buy in. US participation rate in the synod’s preparatory process was 1 percent of US Catholics.

The prospect of getting this feedback within a year may seem daunting to bishops. If the document is really going to be thoroughly discerned and feedback provided within 11 months, the lay faithful will likely have to raise their voices and volunteer to work with their pastors and bishops to get it done in time for the second October session. © OSV News
